FIGHTING FIRES

FIFTY years ago, a notice of a new fire station on the corner of Kimberley Road and Austin Road, Kowloon, which advised that the key could be obtained from the Talmushui Police Station. That was more than a mile away. Even in that sedate and unperturbable age when a fire in Kowloon's wide open spaces was potentially far less dangerous than in today's conditions, the absurdity of this arrangement drew a sharp reprimand from the Press. Yet what is the situation today? As Mr R. G. Cox, acting chief of the Colony's Fire Brigade pointed out at last Saturday's press conference, it is almost as complicated. He quoted the case of the Lo Fu Ngam fire 10 days ago which raged for 20 minutes before the Brigade got there. Not because the firemen were tardy. No one reported it until 15 minutes after it started. Then someone rang 999. The message was passed to the Kowloon Fire Brigade, who relayed it to the Prince Edward Road station, who relayed it to the Ma Tung Chung station which was one-third of a mile from the fire. This seems to be a case of history repeating itself. People called up Police headquarters several miles away to summon the Brigade—and vital minutes were lost.

THE story provides two lessons—one the authorities are already aware of, another which the public still has to learn. Even if the right fire station had been informed instead of the Police—though it couldn't have because its number is not given in the telephone book—the 16-minute delay meant all the difference between the destruction of one or two huts and, in this case, three dead, 30 injured and 3,500 homeless—an appalling toll which was almost wholly avoidable. This is but one vivid example quoted by Mr Cox. The dry season is now with us. We know the dangers. The Christmas night fire of 1953 made 50,000 homeless. Only the strictest vigilance can prevent disasters like these recurring. Vigilance not only in the sense that fires should be reported immediately but that every effort should be made to prevent them starting.

MR Cox is thinking of getting a special emergency telephone number for the Fire Brigade similar to the Police call number 999. An excellent idea. The present number 30303 is practically unknown. It would be a good idea to arrange for two numbers—one for Hongkong and one for Kowloon. The Colony also needs many more public phone booths from which emergency calls can be made. Another proposal worth considering is restoring automatic fire alarms, particularly in the main squatter areas. The Fire Brigade are wisely putting main emphasis on prevention in their current campaign, but public education is always a slow process. The important thing is to ensure there are no delays in contacting the Brigade. So the authorities must aim to give the public a readily available "key" to the nearest fire brigade door. The simplest is a three-digit telephone number.

1,000 PEOPLE LOSE HOMES IN EARLY MORNING BLAZE

Squatter Huts Razed In Kowloon City

An estimated 1,000 people were made homeless in the early hours of this morning when fire destroyed 50 to 60 huts and small buildings near Kai Tak airport.

The fire broke out in a squatter area near the Tung Tau Cottage Resettlement area in Kowloon City. It was densely populated and firemen from the seven appliances which raced out to fight the fire, had a difficult time making their way through the maze of alleyways to reach the burning houses.

Concern Over Increasing Number Of Colony Fires

The Hongkong Fire Brigade is growing more and more concerned with the rising number of fires in the Colony. In an effort to bring home their point, an official said this morning that fires are "water that is kept for your drinking and washing purposes." An official statement released today says, "In the 24 hours ended at 7 a.m. today, the Hongkong Fire Brigade responded to calls to seven fires which caused an estimated $120,000 property damage and rendered 1,000 people homeless." "Some 600 gallons of water were used to fight these fires—water which is kept for your drinking and washing purposes," the Acting Chief Fire Officer, Mr R. G. Cox reported today. "One of these fires," he said, "was caused by an unattended cooking stove, another by the overheating of a ball-bearing in a factory, two by lighted matches thrown away carelessly, and the remaining three by sparks from electrical equipment, setting alight nearby inflammable material."

Rossellini Ordered To Return Children

Rome, Oct. 13. A Rome magistrate today ordered film director, Roberto Rossellini to return his three children to their mother, Ingrid Bergman.

The decision was a provisional one and did not determine which parent would eventually gain custody of the children, Roberto, 9, and the 7-year-old twins Isotta and Isabella. The children had been with their father all summer under a temporary agreement by which both parents have shared their custody alternately in Paris and Rome. Rossellini asked the court to allow him to keep the children in Italy indefinitely. Miss Bergman had to come to Rome several weeks ago to ask the court to force Rossellini to return the children, who visited him during their summer vacation from school. The court ruled the children be returned, "immediately" to Miss Bergman.—UPI.

At one time firemen had to pay out their hoses 3,500 feet from Kai Tak New Village Road to the scene of the blaze. At another time, a strong wind fanned the flames towards Kowloon city, but the blaze was eventually contained.

A spokesman for the Fire Brigade reported that the fire broke out at 4.12 a.m. and was not extinguished until more than two hours later. The cause had been determined as an electrical short circuit.

No Casualties
Most of the huts destroyed were made partly of stone and had galvanised steel roofs. A Government spokesman said some were two-storeyed. No casualties were reported. Registration of the victims began this morning and at 10 a.m. about 600 homeless had been registered for emergency aid. They are being given hot meals at the Kowloon City Welfare Centre in Agyle Street. A spokesman for the fire brigade said he saw goods ranging from textiles, soy beans, paint and bamboo go up in flames.

New Plot Against Kassem

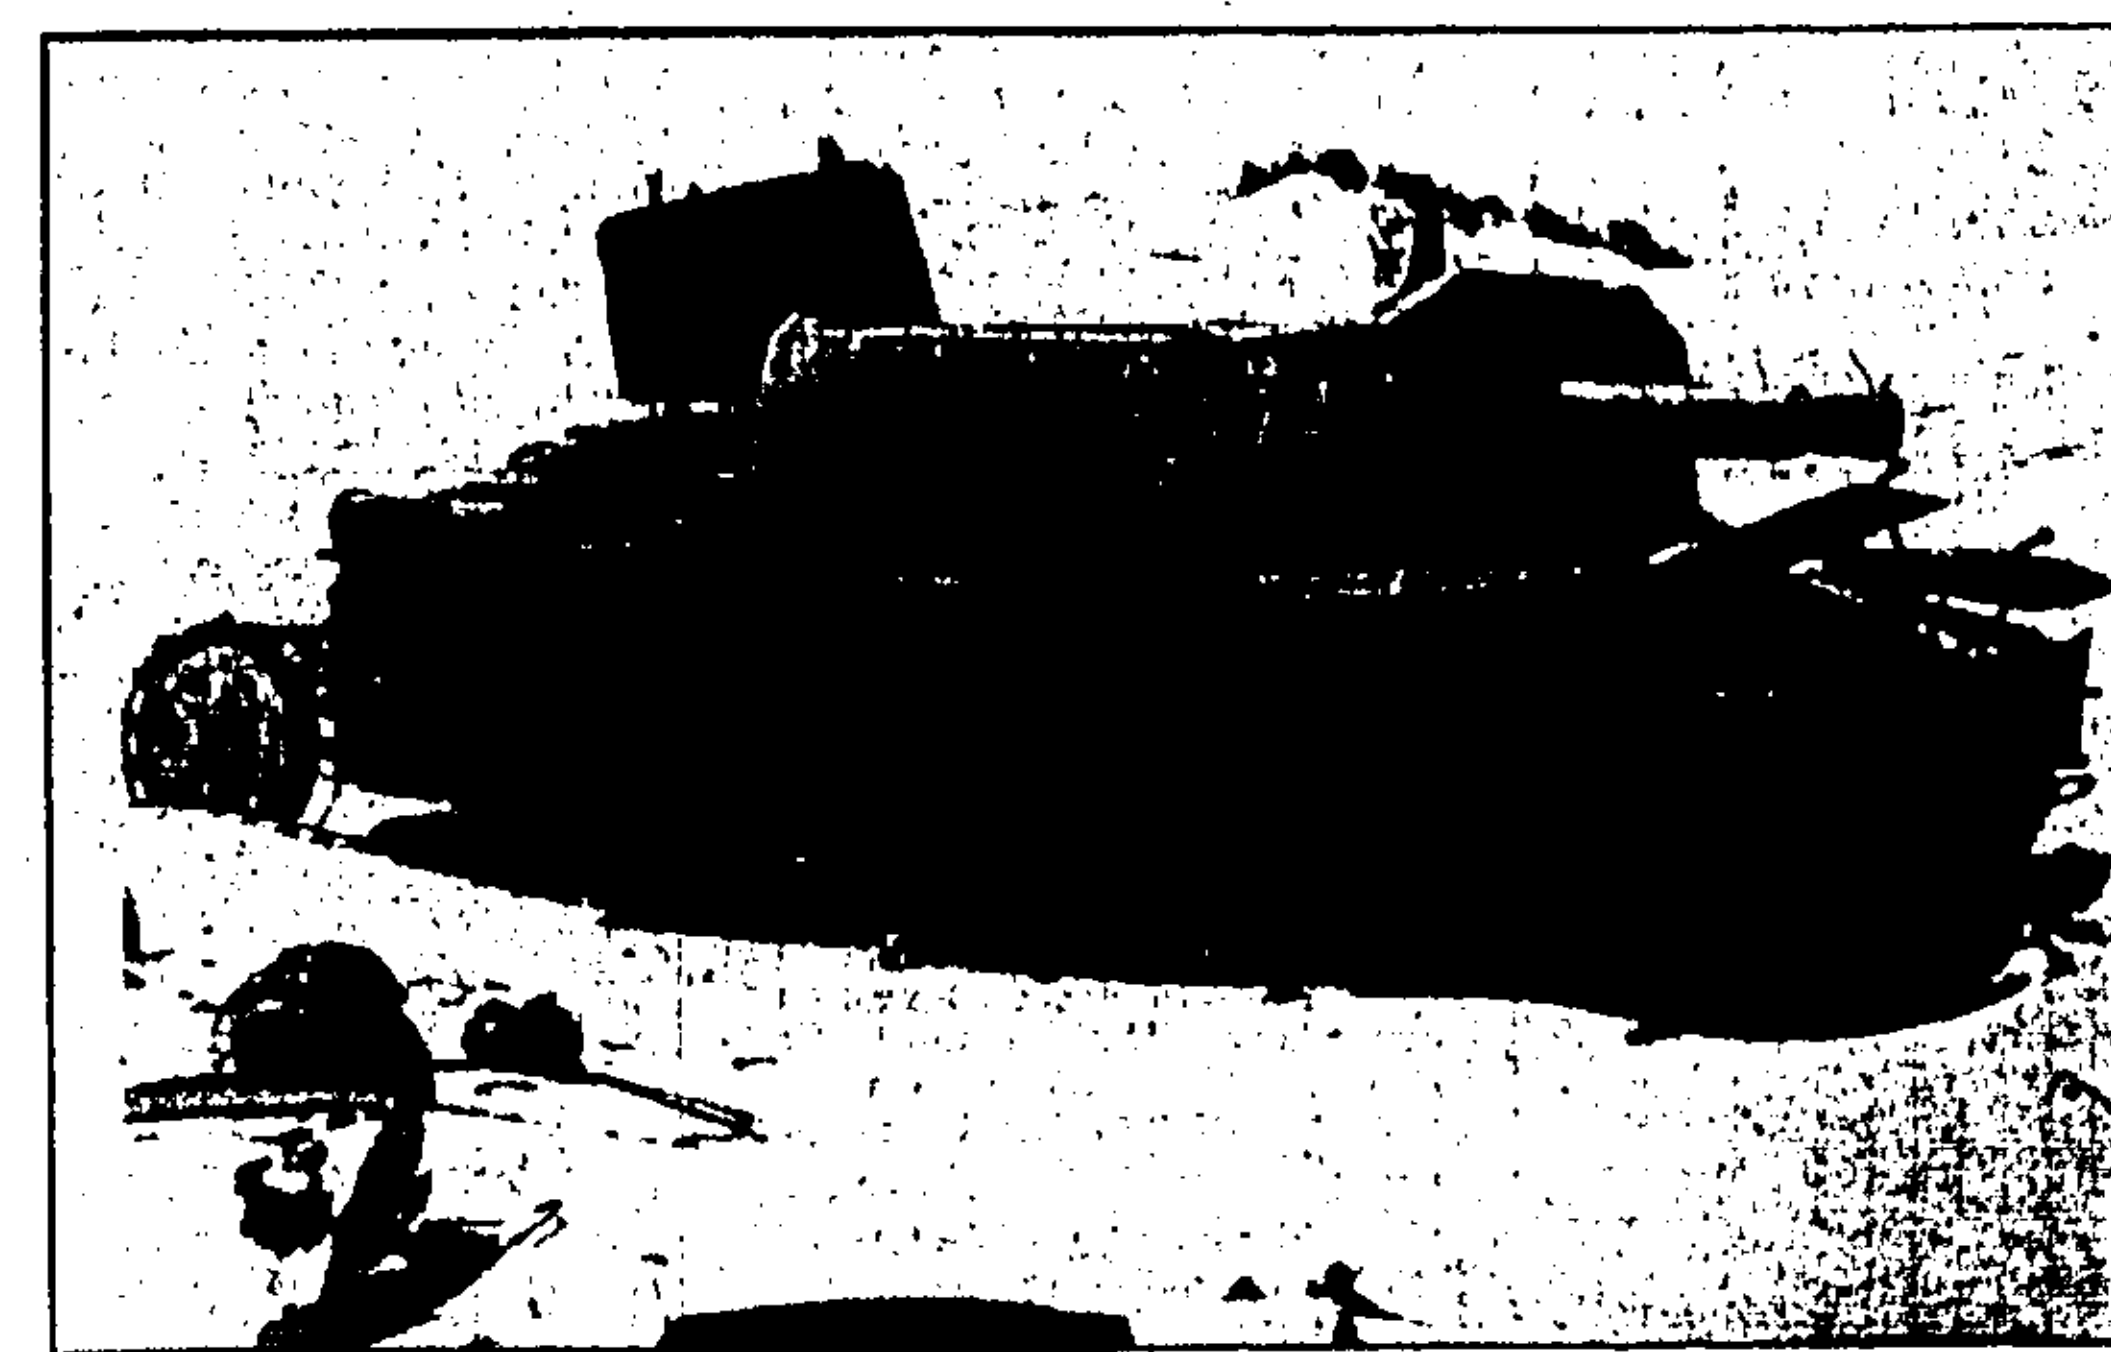

Amman, Oct. 13. The Jordanian evening newspaper, Al Massa, tonight reported a new plot either to kidnap Major-General Abdul Karim Kassem, Iraqi Prime Minister, or kill him in the hospital where he is recovering from wounds received in an assassination attempt last week.

The newspaper, quoting a Kuwaiti traveller from Iraq, said the Iraqi authorities discovered the plot before it could be carried out. The Baghdad authorities had put a heavy veil of secrecy on the new plot, the newspaper added. As soon as the plot was found out security forces took strong measures to protect the Premier, surrounding the hospital with troops, tanks, machine-guns and mortars.—Reuters.

'Deserter' Still Serving

London, Oct. 13. Mr and Mrs Fred Lee were annoyed today after Military Police came to arrest their son as a deserter while he actually is serving in the army in Malaysia. Mr Lee said: "This position is absolutely fantastic. I shall write to Mr Christopher Soames (Secretary of State for War) at the War Office immediately. This demands a thorough investigation at top level," he said.

The 'Haunted' Tank

A group of frightened Bedouins arrived at Mersa Matruh last week with an odd story of a haunted tank. They said that at El Alamein they had seen two German generals coming out of a knocked-out German tank—wailing, and that Arabs passing the spot where it lies after sunset have often reported strange noises. Picture shows the haunted tank—but the photographer saw nothing, heard nothing.—Express Photo.

AIRLINES FAIL TO AGREE ON PASSENGER FARES

Honolulu, Oct. 13. Spokesmen for the International Air Transport Association confirmed officially today that world air carriers had failed to agree on jet age passenger fares and were free after next April to lower them as they saw fit.

But a spokesman also said he felt sure there would be no general price war because of the lack of agreement.

An official IATA conference announcement said the two weeks old annual fares and rate conference of the world's scheduled airlines, adjourned today with agreement only for Europe, the Middle East and on the South Atlantic. It was agreed to retain the present rate structures there for another year.

Mr Louis A. Person, acting conference chairman and traffic director for Braniff Airways serving North and South America, said there would be no world-wide agreement on air fares probably prior to the next traffic conference scheduled for Southern Europe a year from now.—UPI.

Sherpa Killed In Avalanche

Katmandu, Oct. 13. A Sherpa accompanying an all-woman expedition led by Madame Claude Kogan, leading French mountaineer, was killed by an avalanche on the Himalayan peak of Cho Oyu on October 2, according to a message from the expedition tonight. The message said the Sherpa's name was Tunzang. Another Sherpa, Sardar Wangdi, was also caught in the avalanche but escaped with frostbitten hands.—Reuters.

'Deserter' Still Serving

London, Oct. 13. Mr and Mrs Fred Lee were annoyed today after Military Police came to arrest their son as a deserter while he actually is serving in the army in Malaysia. Mr Lee said: "This position is absolutely fantastic. I shall write to Mr Christopher Soames (Secretary of State for War) at the War Office immediately. New Appeal But No Negotiations

By RUTHERFORD POATS

Washington, Oct. 13. Mr Douglas Dillon, U.S. Undersecretary of State will renew the American Government's request for restrictions on Hongkong textile exports to the United States.

But it was learned today as he left for his Far East trip covering Hongkong, Tokyo, Seoul and Taipei that he plans to hold no negotiations during his two-day stay in the Colony.

It was also announced that Mr Henry Kearns, U.S. Assistant Secretary of Commerce for International Affairs, would leave next week on a nine-nation tour of the Far and Middle East including Hongkong.

Mr Kearns will leave next Tuesday for Tokyo.—UPI & Reuter. (The United States has been pressing Hongkong to reduce the export of several textile items. Assistant Secretary of Commerce Henry Kearns has addressed appeals both to Hongkong manufacturers and to American mail order houses which are big buyers of Hongkong-made garments and underwear. But so far there has been no response.)

Kenya's Governor To Receive Queen's Award

London, Oct. 13. Sir Evelyn Baring, who retires tomorrow after seven years as Governor of Kenya, has been awarded the Queen's commendation for brave conduct for his part in rescuing a young Indian girl from drowning on September 6.

The award to Sir Evelyn and to Captain Archibald Thomas Ayres Ritchie, a former Kenya game warden, for his part in the same incident was announced in tonight's London Gazette.

Sir Evelyn went to the rescue of two Indian girls who were in difficulty 180 yards from the shore at Malindi, 80 miles north of Mombasa. With 20 yards to go before reaching the beach 55 year old Sir Evelyn became exhausted and Captain Ritchie went to help him and the girl ashore. The second girl drowned. After the rescue, Sir Evelyn suffered lung inflammation and strained heart muscles.—Reuters.

Changsha To Be Refloated Next Year?

The Butterfield and Swire ship Changsha will not be refloated for another six months, a cable from Nagoya, Japan, said this morning. A spokesman for Butterfield and Swire, local agents for the Changsha, said: "This is the first we have heard of this and we are expecting the ship to be off a good deal earlier than that." He declined to comment further.

The 7,411-ton ship was stranded on the coast of Japan near Yokohama harbour during typhoon Vera two weeks ago.

A statement by the Maritime Safety Agency in Japan said that of the 12 vessels that had run aground, six had been refloated. But it would not be until next April when all would be refloated.

The statement also said that the Tjitalengka, which was stranded at the mouth of the Fuji River, would take three months to refloat, the UPI cable added.

IN 8 WEEKS
In Hongkong, a spokesman for RIL also said it was the first he had heard of this statement. He said he expected that the Tjitalengka should be refloated in six to eight weeks time. The spokesman said he had just returned from Japan, and although he had heard there had been some delay in the acquisition of dredgers to aid in the refloating operations. Unless any serious damage had been caused to the RIL ship, he expected her off within eight weeks.

Liberals Satisfied With Poll Results

London, Oct. 13. The Liberal Party said in a statement tonight that it would have one member in the new House of Commons for every 271,627 votes gained whereas the Conservatives would have one for every 37,693 votes.

Labour, the major opposition party, would have one member for every 47,349 votes. The Liberal statement on the results of last Thursday's poll was issued after a meeting of the Party's General Election Campaign Committee.

The meeting expressed great satisfaction with the increase in the Liberal poll to 1,040,781 votes, but regretted that this was not reflected in the Commons representation (six members in a House of 630).—Reuter.

To Advise On New Chinese University

Mr J. S. Fulton, vice-chancellor of the University of Wales arrived here by Boaz this morning to advise the Chinese colleges in Hongkong on their amalgamation into a Chinese University.

He will be in the Colony for about three weeks and will look into the existing situation. He added that his three-week working programme would be a hard one.

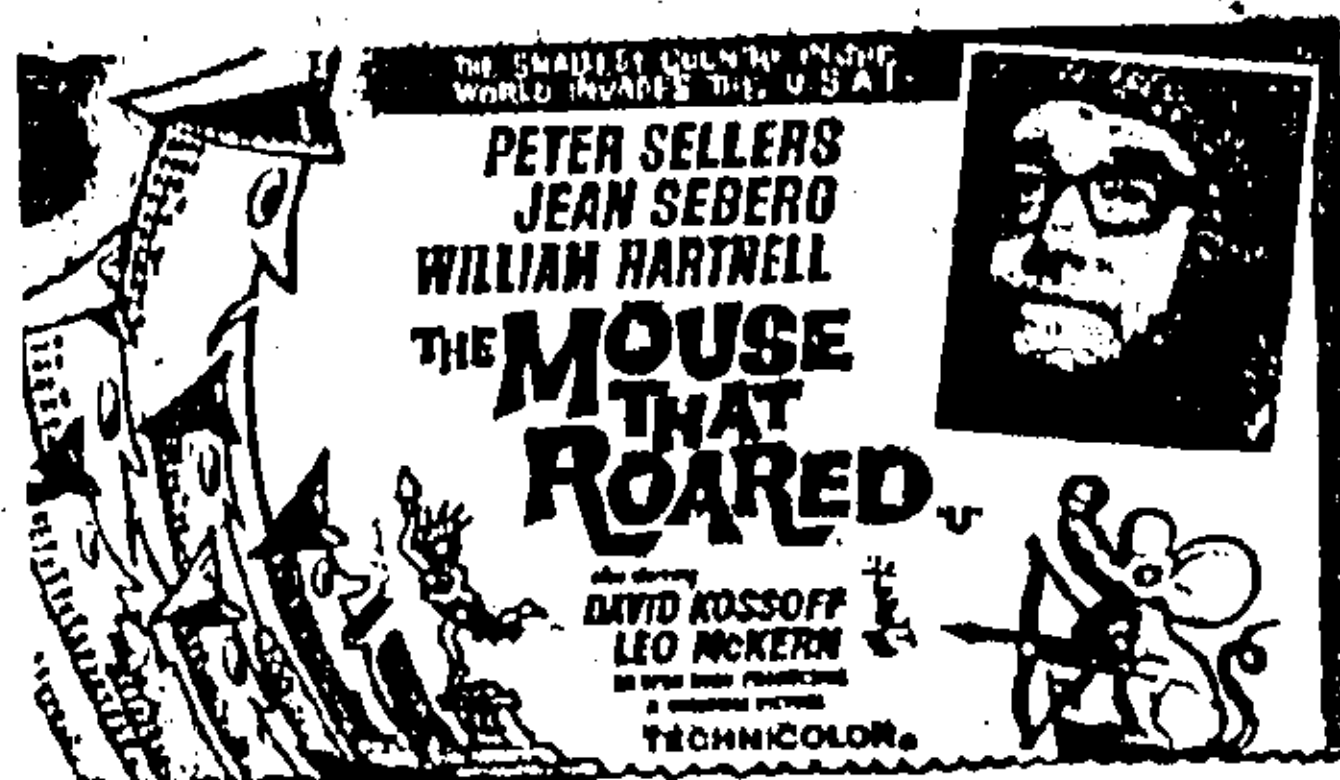

Mr Fulton was met at the airport this morning by Mr D. J. S. Crozier, Director of Education and Mr L. G. Morgan, Deputy Director.

NO TYPHOON THREAT FOR COLONY

Typhoon Charlotte, with winds of up to 100 knots at its centre, is not expected to be a threat to Hongkong on its present course, a spokesman for the Royal Observatory said this morning. The typhoon, the 18th of the season, was originally regarded as a possible threat. At 9 a.m. today, Charlotte was 170 miles east-south-east of Baco, an island roughly midway between Formosa and the Philippines. It is moving slowly NNW at six knots. The typhoon is expected to recurve north or north-east later.

PEACEFUL CO-EXISTENCE IS

K's ANSWER TO PEACE

Moscow, Oct. 13.
Nikita Khrushchev declared in a speech published here tonight that the question of peaceful co-existence of states with different social systems is the root question of our time. He added: "We must realise that the struggle for the consolidation of peace will be a long one."

AUSTRALIAN PLAN FOR ASIAN STUDENTS

Melbourne, Oct. 13.
The Vice-Chancellor of Melbourne University, Sir George Paton, today supported a proposed plan under which private firms in Victoria would sponsor scholarships for Asian students.

The proposal was made by Mr. Christopher Olsen, an Australian now teaching in Malaya. Professor Paton said more scholarships for Asians would lead to more goodwill. He said Malayan students who returned home spoke with nostalgia of their university days in Australia.

FURTHER EXPERIENCE
Mr. Olsen said his suggestion should particularly interest firms with trading associations in Malaya and other countries.

The Victorian Employers Federation is already bringing overseas craftsmen to Victoria for further experience. Two Indian plumbers will be brought to Victoria later this year on working scholarships by the Victorian Overseas Foundation, sponsored by the Employers Federation.—Reuter.

BEM For Gallant Talker

London, Oct. 13.
The British Empire Medal for gallantry (Civil Division) has been awarded to Janit Meludo, Native Officer, Class II, of the Government station, Juola River, Sarawak, who talked to an armed fugitive for "many patient and nerve-racking hours," the London Gazette announced tonight.

The citation said that Meludo obtained information where a man wanted for murder was located. It was known that the man was armed and had threatened to shoot if attempts were made to arrest him.

Meludo persuaded the man to return with him to the Government station. "The criminal never parted with his loaded shot-gun and at any time, Meludo, who displayed initiative and courage of a very high order, might have been the victim of a murderous assault," the citation added.—Reuter.

Worthy Cause

Memphis, Tennessee, Oct. 13.
Rok 'N' Roll foes may wonder if Elvis Presley's manager, Tom Parker, is repeating past sins. Parker yesterday sent the Memphis Orchestral Society a $200 ($271) cheque to go toward establishing a symphony orchestra here.—UPI.

The Soviet Prime Minister's speech was made at Novosibirsk on October 10 when he was on his way home from attending China's anniversary celebrations in Peking and was issued tonight by Tass.

Addressing workers in the town, he referred to his visit to America and said:

"My meetings and talks in America showed that the majority of the American people do not want war and are striving to promote peaceful co-operation between the USSR and the United States." He went on:

Without War

"The Soviet Union's successes and the development of the world socialist system are a fact that cannot be ignored when it comes to solving international problems."

He said peaceful co-existence must be correctly understood.

"Co-existence means continuation of the struggle between the two social systems—but by peaceful means, without war, without interference by one state in the internal affairs of another." He added, "We consider it to be economic, political and ideological struggle, but not military."

"It will be a competition of the two systems in a peaceful field," Mr. Khrushchev said.

"In order to win this competition, we must direct all our efforts to the fulfilment and overfulfilment of the seven-year plan, to further advancement of the Soviet economy and culture, to consolidation of the might of our homeland."

Have Everything

"The Soviet people have everything, having hand and natural wealth. Who said that the Soviet citizen must eat half as much as the American? I believe that, if need be, we can ensure for every Soviet five times as much as the American has."

He went on: "My meetings and talks with the President of the United States will be of great importance for a better understanding of the positions of both states, for an improvement of the relations between our countries."

"We shall continue our conversations during Mr. Eisenhower's return visit to the Soviet Union. It appears that a meeting of the heads of government will be held in the near future distant future."

"All this provides favourable conditions for a relaxation of international tension."

Melt Ice

Mr. Khrushchev added however, that "much has still to be done to melt the ice of the cold war and to achieve a genuine thaw in the relations between states."

Turning to the question of facts and alliances built up by the "imperialist" states, on the plea of defence against the "Communist menace," Mr. Khrushchev said: "This threat, as shown by history, does not come from without, from some particular country, but is inherent in the very body of the capitalist states themselves. The present military alliances and blocs of the capitalist states have been set up for the same purposes for which the tens, centuries and kings created in their time the so-called Holy Alliance to fight the revolutionary movement in order to preserve the throne."—Reuter.

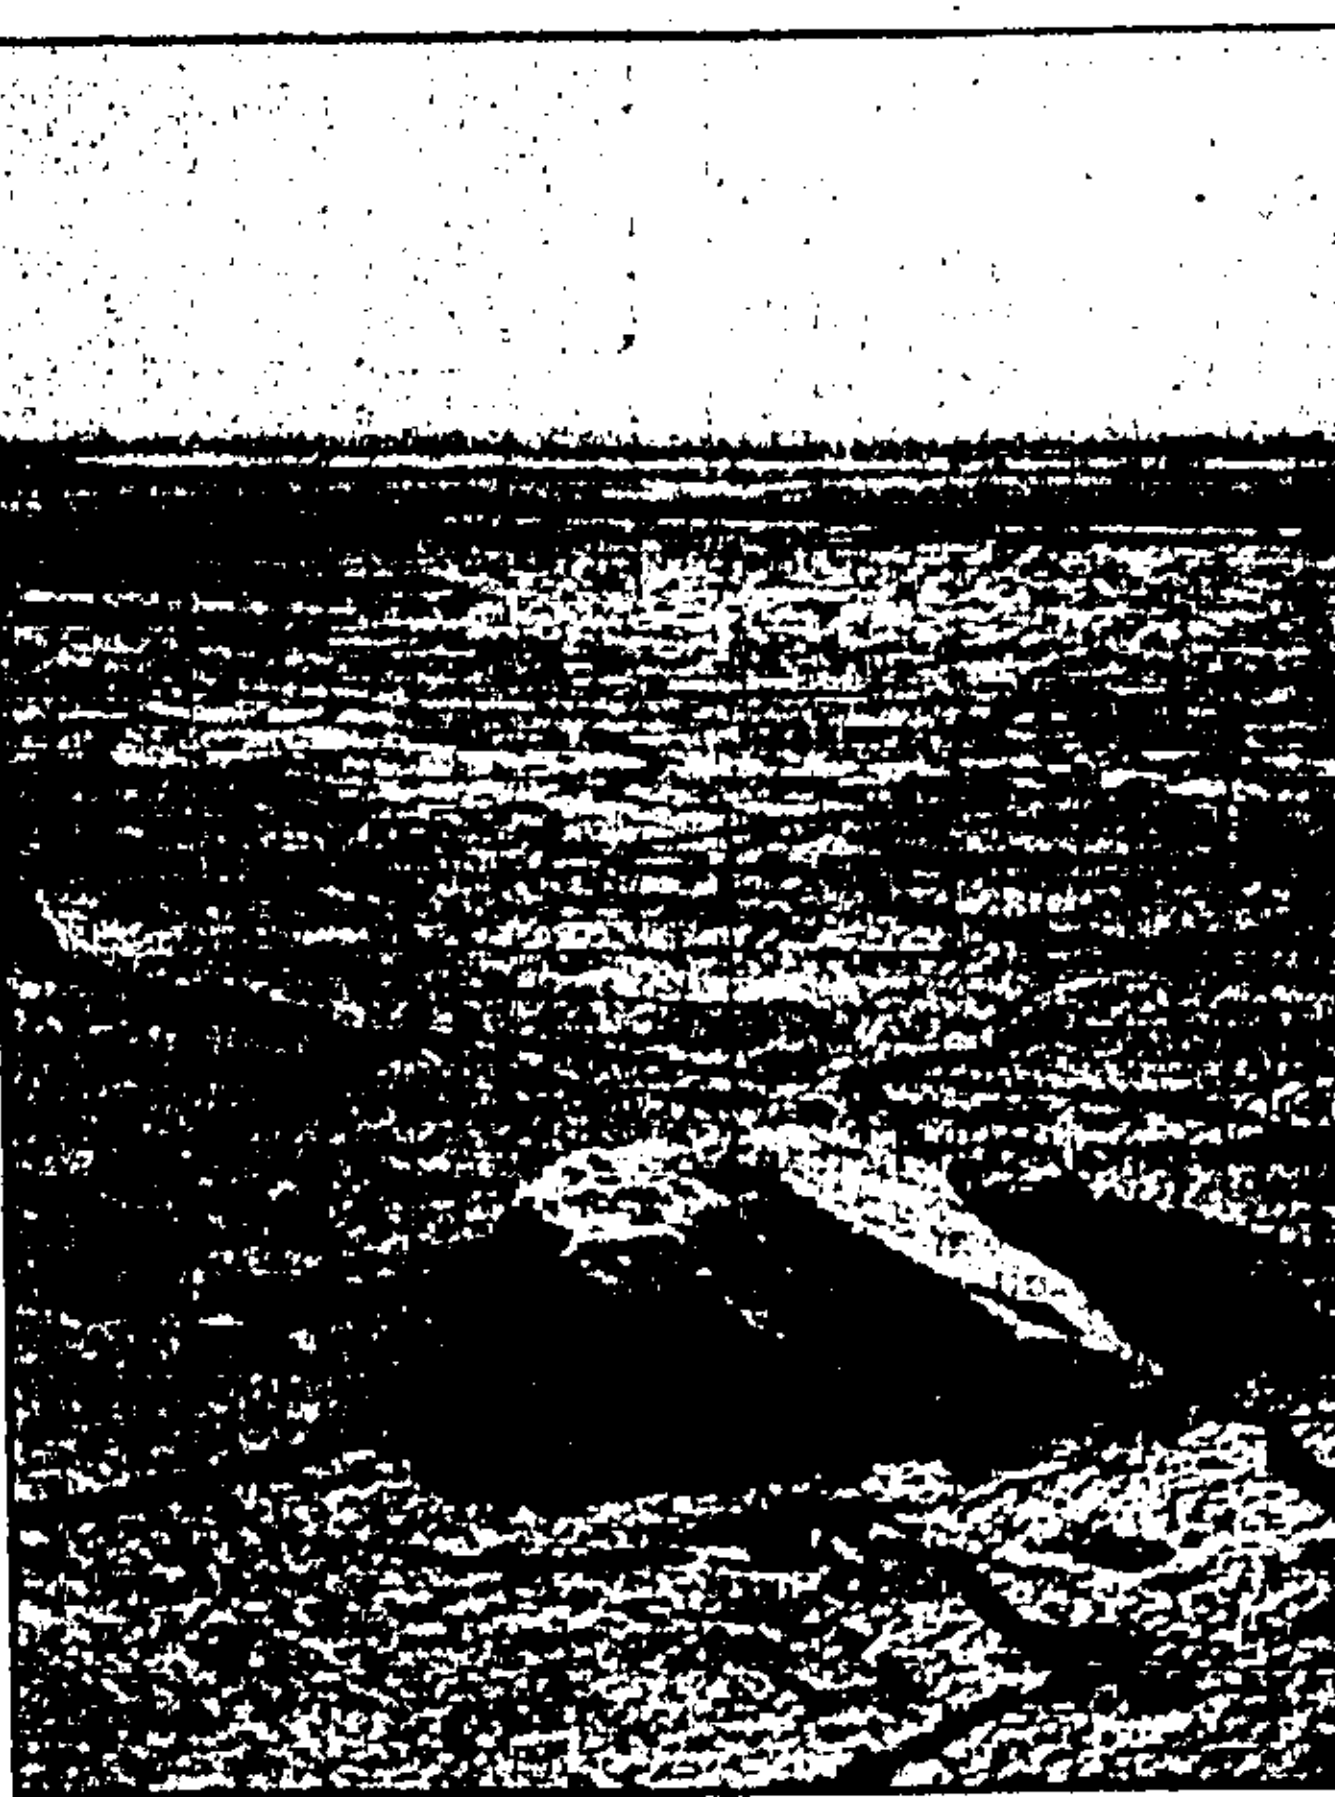

British Firm To Develop English Cotton

London, Oct. 13.
A leading British fabrics firm — Jacquemar — announced today that because of the Government-sponsored modernisation of a number of Lancashire cotton mills, it was investing "considerable capital" in the conversion and development of English cotton. Hitherto the bulk of the Jacquemar cotton collection — some 20,000,000 yards each year — had been produced abroad.

But the scrapping of old plants in Lancashire and the installation of the latest machinery would now enable the mills to raise their standards of technique and printing and to surpass foreign competitors, the company said.

The cotton would sell extensively in export markets all over the world to the ready-to-wear trade and to retail stores in this country.—Reuter.

SAHARA IN SCOTLAND

This is no desert—or at least it shouldn't be. This immense stretch of parched, cracked earth is the dried up bed of the Talla Reservoir, largest of the eight which supply Edinburgh with water. Darwin, Oct. 13.
AUSTRALIAN aborigines are treated better than primitive people anywhere else in the world, according to the leaders of an Anglo-Swiss expedition which arrived in Darwin today after touring the Australian outback.

Quiz Game Investigation

New York, Oct. 13.
Professor Charles van Doren, who won $128,000 on the television quiz game "21," announced today he would testify before a Congressional sub-committee investigating rigged quiz shows.

Through his lawyer, Carl Rubino, the 33-year-old son of famous American literary figure, Mark van Doren, declared he was ready to accept a subpoena sent him last Friday by the sub-committee.—AFP.

The expedition is led by Mr. Henry M. Bernier, a Swiss photographer and lecturer who has visited 78 countries, and an Englishman, Mr. Victor B. Cranley.

They said no other country in the world was doing so much for its primitive people as Australia.

Mr. Bernier said: "In 78 countries I have never seen a better attempt to improve the lives of native peoples."

Mr. Cranley said the "Flying Doctor" service and the "School of the Air" were unique.

He said the aborigines were being assimilated through the education of the children.

Mr. Cranley said the idea of the Flying Doctor service, by which even the lowliest place was within flying distance, was only vaguely known in Europe.

"I was told the cost was nothing as though that was the most natural thing in the world," Mr. Cranley said. "But it isn't natural—it's phenomenal!" —China Mail Special.

PLANS FOR RAF TOLD

Sydney, Oct. 13. Despite the rapid manufacture of guided missiles, Britain would continue to develop and build manned aircraft, Air Chief Marshal Sir Thomas Pike, RAF, told reporters here today.

The quietly-spoken Air Chief reached Sydney today in an RAF transport aircraft, en route to Canberra. He was accompanied by Lady Pike and Sir Maurice Dean, Permanent Under Secretary of the British Air Ministry.

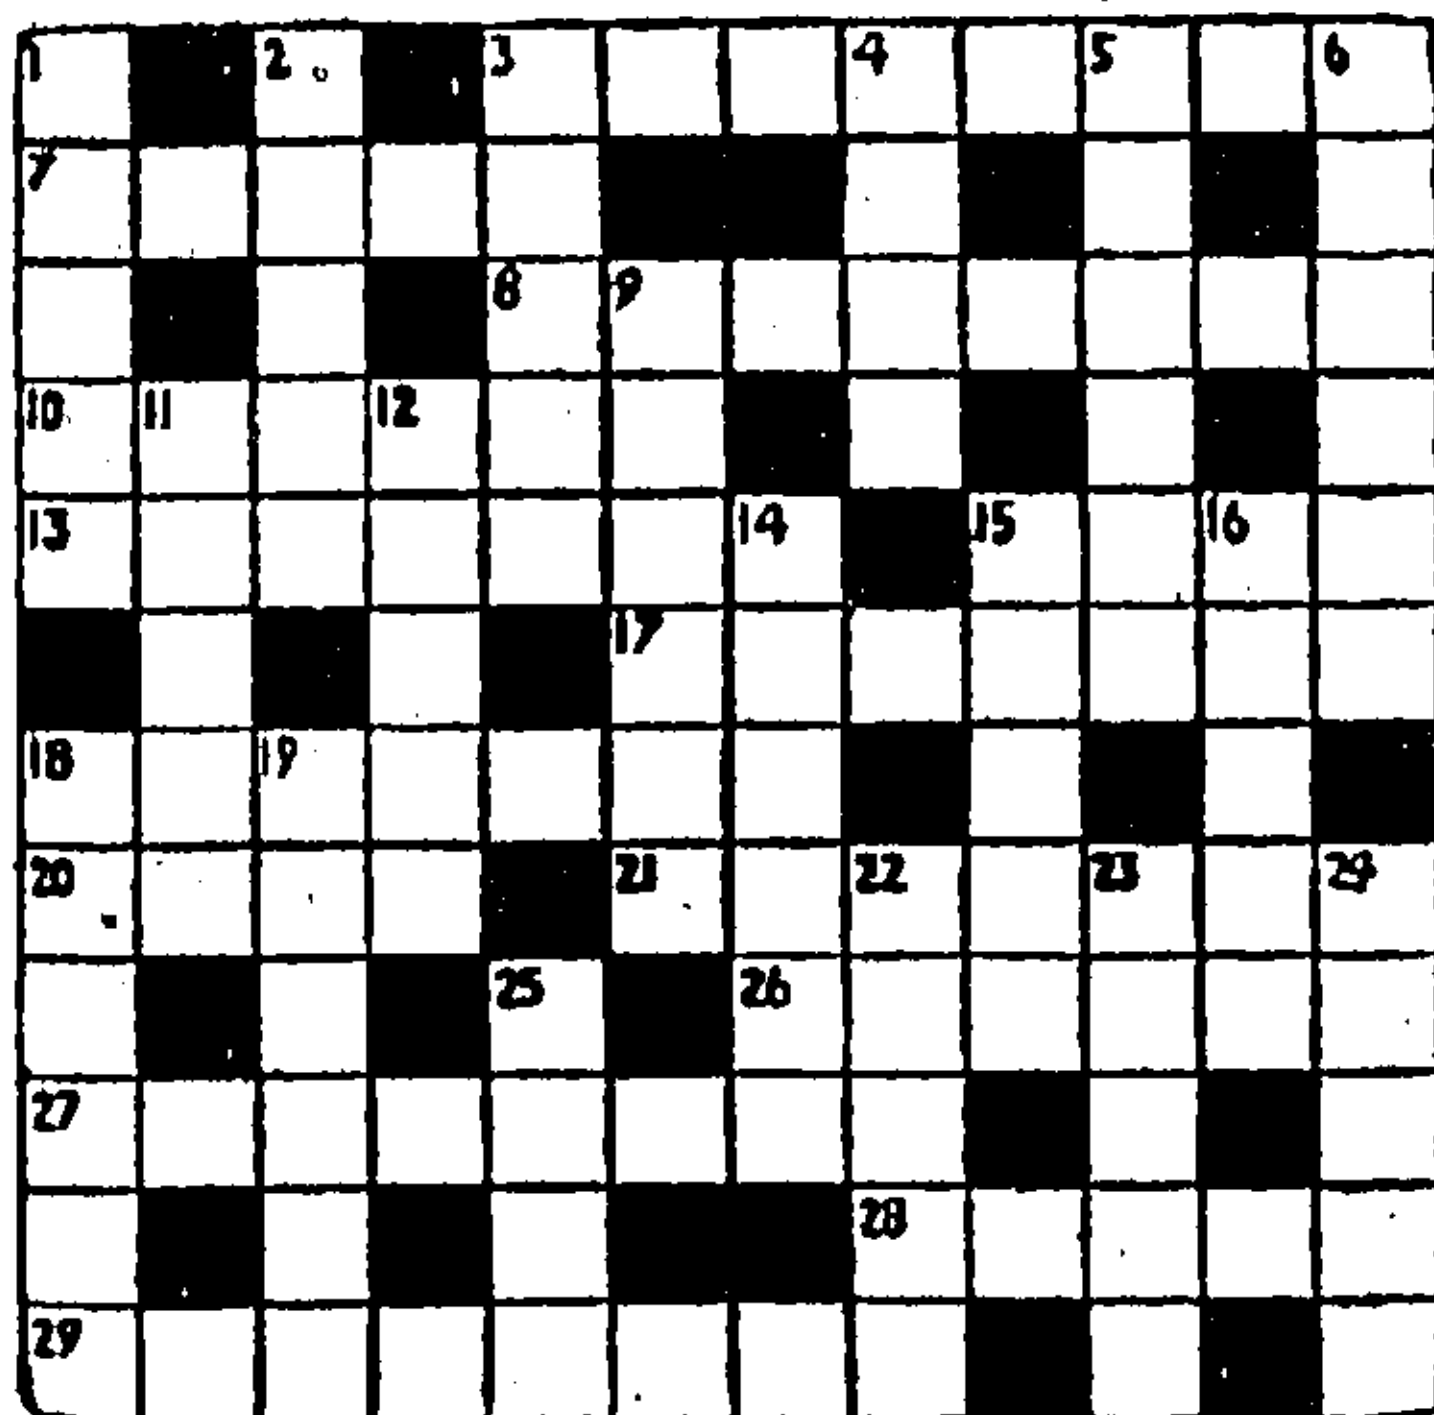

WORLD'S BEST

Sir Thomas believes Britain has the best bombers in the world today, and "Britain intends to keep them," he said. When asked if he thought Britain had the world's best equipped Air Force, he replied, "I am too modest a man to answer that."

FAR EAST TOUR

Sir Thomas is on a six weeks' private tour of the Far East, Australia and New Zealand. In January, next year, he will replace Sir Dermot A. Boyle as Chief of Air Staff—the highest position in the British Air Force. He will have discussions with the Minister of Defence, Mr. A. G. Townley, during his Australian visit. Sir Thomas will leave for New Zealand on Friday.—Reuter.

Dispute Over Anthem Playing

London, Oct. 13. The row between the Granada Television Company and the Sutherland Meat Paste Firm over the playing of the national anthem was carried a step further today.

Yesterday Mr Peter Sutherland, head of the meat paste firm, announced that his firm would no longer advertise with Granada—one of the commercial companies depending on advertising for its revenue—because the company does not play the national anthem before closing down for the night.

Today Granada announced that the firm has not had an advertisement screen over their network since 1957.

LETTER

Mr Sutherland has written to the Food Manufacturers' Federation suggesting they withdraw their advertisements for the same reason.

His letter will be considered by the Federation's policy making committee on Thursday.

The national anthem is customarily played at the end of most public entertainment performances.

Yesterday a Granada spokesman said that their policy was only to play it on special national occasions. Their experience in theatres and cinemas had shown that many people made their way out while the anthem was being played, which seemed "the reverse of showing respect to the Sovereign."—China Mail Special.

MALTA ECONOMIC SCHEME

Valletta, Malta, Oct. 13. The British Government has earmarked £29 million for capital developments in Malta under a five-year development plan for the island published here today.

This includes £6 million for the conversion of the naval dockyard to a commercial ship repairing yard.

The plan would diversify the economy of the island, shifting the emphasis from defence to industry.

It provides for development of Valletta harbour, with mechanical handling for general cargoes and a deep-water quay.

It also covers development of tourist and hotel trade, and a wide range of economic and social services, including housing, education, water and road development.—Reuter.

VENEZUELA CALLS ALERT

Caracas, Oct. 13. Venezuelans were called to the alert today to face a possible coup against the elected government following yesterday's sensational jail-break by the overthrown dictator Perez Jimenez's chief lieutenant.

Former General Nestor Prato, Minister of Education in the Jimenez regime, broke out of Maracibo Model Prison, where he was awaiting trial on a charge of embezzlement in administration.

15 ARRESTED

Fifteen people are under arrest in connection with the escape, which climaxed a series of bomb attacks on business premises and the homes of leading personalities. Only minor damage was caused.

The Jimenez regime was overthrown in January of 1958 and a junta ruled the country until elections in December, when the present president, Romulo Betancourt, led his Democratic Action Party to power.

Perez Jimenez is now living in Florida.—China Mail Special.

New Process To Harness H-Bomb Energy Claimed

New York, Oct. 13. Two American scientists have perfected a revolutionary process for controlling thermonuclear fusion energy, the New York Times reported today.

Thermonuclear fusion is the reaction set off by the explosion of a hydrogen bomb.

Details of the new process were described during a recent meeting between American and British scientists, by its inventors, Doctor James Tuck and John Marshall of the Los Alamos scientific laboratory. The New York Times pointed out that the control of thermonuclear fusion could provide the world with a limitless source of energy. It added that the oceans contained enough heavy hydrogen to satisfy the needs of the world for thousands of millions of years. An important aspect of the problem was to find out if this energy could be produced economically, the newspaper said.

MAGNETIC REVOLVER

The New York Times said the new process consisted in using a magnetic revolver, which shoots a nuclear jet into a magnetic field—which in turn acts as a magnetic bottle. The fusion reaction occurs inside this bottle in which the nuclear jet is bottled up.

The New York newspaper explained that the magnetic fields played the part of a bottle because they enclosed the very high temperatures set off by and accompanying the fusion. They thereby protected the walls of the reaction chamber.

The New York Times added that the various experiments described by the American scientists from Los Alamos indicated that thermonuclear reaction had been produced on a laboratory scale.—AFP.

CLERGYMAN TO WED SINGER

Niagara Falls, Ontario, Oct. 13.

An Anglican clergyman announced on Monday plans to marry a Moncton, New Brunswick night club singer after a one-month courtship.

Rev Robert Laidlaw, Rector of St Martin's Anglican Church said he will wed singer Barbara Alcorn next Saturday. They met when Barbara, who is appearing at the Fallsview Hotel in Niagara Falls, attended a Sunday service in Rector's Church.

Two days later, the clergyman watched Barbara sing at the hotel. He came in almost every night after that and proposed 10 days later.

GOD'S CHOICE
"Some people might think it's a little sudden, but I always knew that when a person of God's choice came along there would be no question about it," Rector said.

Miss Alcorn commented: Barbara was born in Moncton and has been singing in night clubs in Canada and the United States for three years.

Rector was born in India, the son of a New Zealand educational missionary. He was a salesman in Toronto and a radio announcer in Australia before being ordained in 1944.

He has been in Niagara Falls for six years.

Barbara said she'll switch her activities from night life to church choir after they're married.—UPI.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 14

AQUARIUS (January 21-February 19): The matter which is the cause of your dispute with a senior must be brought into the open and discussed freely.

PISCES (February 20-March 20): You should try and overcome your inability to recognise the truth when you are faced with it. Don't deceive yourself into believing everything you hear.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are rather agitated in anticipation of an impending test. When the time comes you must calm down and not spoil your chances of success by losing your head.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Before embarking on a venture which you have planned rather haphazardly, you must realise that the results may not be worth your effort.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21): Perseverance is an essential aspect of your character and you are very right always to finish a job no matter what the obstacles.

CANCER (June 22-July 21): After having analysed all the aspects of a rather disquieting situation, you will be relieved to find the position practically the reverse of what you feared.

LEO (July 22-August 21): Your conviction that someone has tried to do you an injury is not based on any proof or definite information, and you should dismiss it.

VIRGO (August 22-September 22): Your recent course of action is not strictly correct, and since you have always tried to do the right thing you ought to abandon it.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22): Don't be too easily persuaded to base your behaviour on that of somebody else; remain an individual and follow your own inclinations.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): Before entering into a serious

BY JOY MATTHEWS

THAT dazzling instrument panel above does not contain—believe it or not—the dials of the newest space rocket. They are simply the knobs and the dials on the newest washing machine that has just come over from America.

The men who make the washers and driers, and cutters, and pulpers, and rotor boilers, and ironers and grinders, are certainly saving us labour, but they are certainly working havoc with our minds.

The fully automatic home may sound like bliss, but just remember who's supposed to be in control of the machinery.

A woman soon won't be able to run a home without a degree in engineering—or at least a sound knowledge of electricity and plumbing.

Those explanatory leaflets don't help. "The Drier Signal Light will glow when you set the Timer, showing that the Drier Timer has been activated," states one of the pamphlets.

"Outlet 1/2 in. B.S.P. Male Thread—for fitting Tap Centre of outlet to back of machine 12 in." are the instructions for fitting another gadget.

It's all very difficult.

They can show us pictures of proud, happy, carefree housewives in dainty little organdie aprons throwing up their hands in delight at the machines in their model kitchens, but when it comes to it, the only labour-saving gadget most women understand is another servant.—London Express Service.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS POLISH THEM OFF

"Is it possible to remove heat marks from my polished table?" asks a reader.

If the marks are not too severe, rubbing with a little silver polish may do the trick.

If that doesn't prove effective, pour one or two drops of methylated spirit on to a pad of cotton-wool. Cover the pad with two thicknesses of muslin and use it to rub over and around the marks on the table. Doing that will pull some of the polish from the undamaged wood on to the blemished areas, and so mask the discoloration.

Of course, if the table has been badly marked, it will need to be professionally re-polished.

JACOBY on BRIDGE

THE columnist's life is not a happy one. He has to produce a genuinely interesting bridge hand six times a week and just can't do it by himself.

Hence, if you readers wonder why Milton Unger keeps appearing in this column I must point out that he sends me hand after hand of sufficient interest to warrant writing about. If I had a dozen correspondents like Milton (incidentally, I have never met him), my life would be a bed of roses.

Here he is again but much more conservative than usual. He is only doubled, not redoubled.

I don't see why he didn't redouble. He had bid four spades almost by himself and held one whole high card point. Anyhow, he had to lose one club and one spade and when he tackled the diamond suit by leading the ten West put on the queen and dummy's king held the trick.

Now Milton came off dummy with the eight and East played low for the second time but Milton was up to par. He reasoned that East needed the ace of diamonds for his double and that West just had to hold the nine so Milton went up with his jack, picked up the nine and made his contract.

For a hors d'oeuvre or as a snack, these pickled herrings are excellent. The vinegar dressing is all the "cooking" they get.

Scrape and fillet six to seven salt herrings (two fillets each). Wash them in cold water, drain, cover with milk and leave overnight. Wash again in fresh water, drain well and dry on absorbent paper.

Place the fillets, skin side down, on a board and, on each, sprinkle a little crushed whole allspice, a few mustard seeds and a few coriander seeds. At the head end of each, place half slice raw onion. Roll up, starting from the head end, and secure with cocktail sticks.

Pack the "rolls" into a wide-necked jar and add two small pieces of bruised ginger, two bay leaves, a clove and, if liked, a section of garlic.

Roll together 1/2 pint distilled (white) vinegar, 1/4 pint water and 2oz. sugar. Leave to become cold then pour the mixture over the herrings. They will be ready in 24 hours, but 48 will be better.

For Bismarck herrings, cut the soaked and dried fillets into 1 1/2 in. slices, place in jars, sprinkle the spices through them and cover with the cold sweetened vinegar.

The real hamburgers consist of beef and seasoning only. It is unwise to add anything else to them.

For 3 to 4 servings, cut 1lb. lean top-side beef or rump or fillet steak into cubes or strips and pass them through a mincing machine. Add a teaspoon of salt and a pinch of freshly milled pepper and mix well. Divide into 6 to 8 portions and form them into flat round cakes, without pressing them too much together.

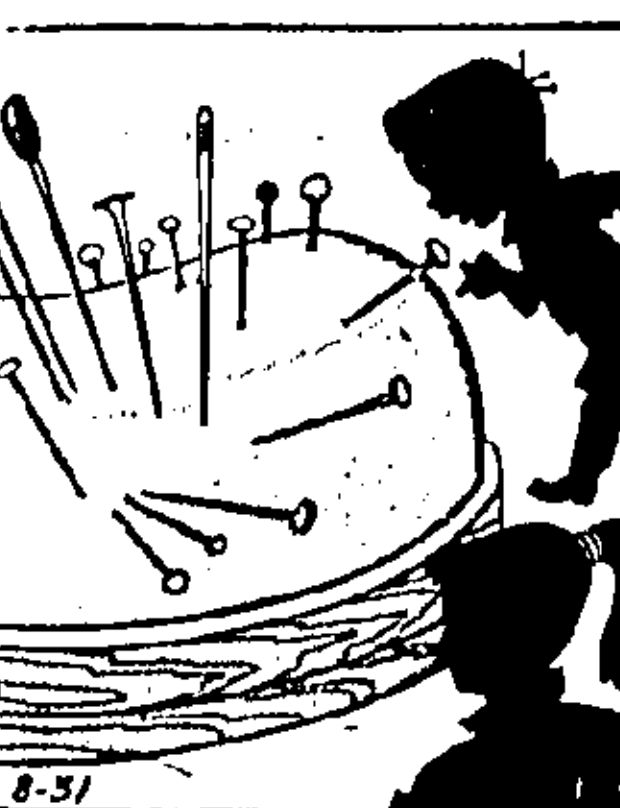

Melt a little butter or beef dripping in the grill pan. Place the steaks in it and at once turn them so that both sides are coated with the fat. Grill on both sides to suit individual tastes.

Garnish with grilled tomatoes and send to table with a piece of maître d'hôtel butter melting on each. This is simply butter creamed with a little lemon juice with as much chopped parsley as you like worked into it.

The hamburgers can also be fried in a strong cast-iron pan whose surface has first been rubbed over with raw beef fat.

In the United States, where hamburgers are now almost a national dish, the usual accompaniments are blanched onion rings, green tomato pickles and tomato ketchup.

"Look!" shouted Knarf to Handi. "It's full of pins!"

them cheerfully, as they both set out for the room downstairs where Mother did her sewing.

Found Cushion

Knarf and Handi found the blue cushion on the table next to Mother's sewing basket exactly where Mr Punch had said it would be.

"But look!" shouted Knarf, pointing at it. "It's filled with pins!"

"It's a pin-cushion!" cried Handi.

Then Knarf and Handi remembered the slight smile in the corner of Mr Punch's mouth. They looked at the pin-cushion and laughed too.

But things didn't turn out too bad after all. For in the sewing room, there were four wonderful corners and all of them were empty.

"I wish," said Knarf to Handi, "we could sleep in two corners at the same time!"

They both slept very well, each in one corner.

No Place To Sleep

—Mr. Punch Plays A Joke On The Shadows—

By MAX TRELL

"OH DEAR," said Handi, the Shadow-Girl with the Turned-About Name to her brother Knarf. "I don't know where you're going to sleep tonight! Just look! All the corners are taken up!"

Handi was pointing around to the four corners of the room as she spoke.

She Was Right

Knarf looked and saw that she was right. Each of the corners was taken up by someone.

In one of the corners, Teddy, the Stuffed Bear was sleeping. In another corner, Hlawatha the Small-Sized Wooden Indian was lying. In the third corner, lay the Kitten, all curled up. And in the fourth corner, Whoa the Hobby Horse stood on his feet with his eyes shut. He was asleep standing up.

"In fact," Handi added, "I don't know where either of us is going to sleep!"

On The Carpet?

"Maybe we could sleep on the carpet in the middle of the room," suggested Knarf.

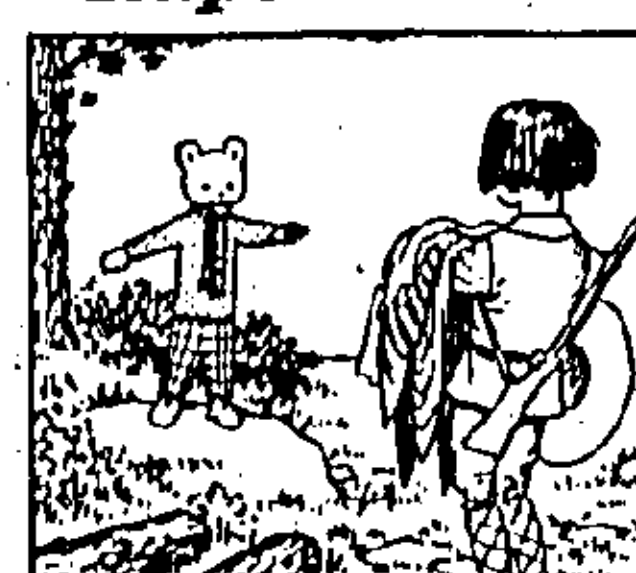

Handi shook her head.

"Someone might step on us," she said.

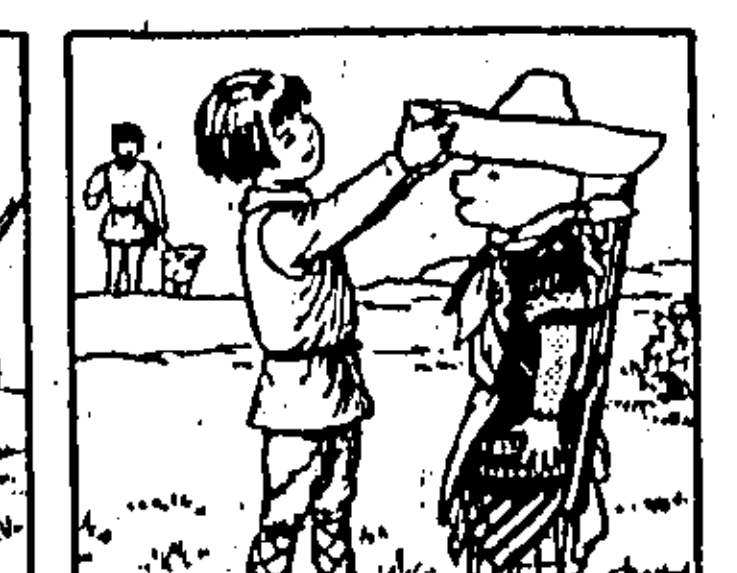

"Why can't we sleep in a bed like everyone else?" asked Knarf.

"Shadows don't sleep in beds," said Handi. "You know that as well as I do."

Rupert and the Outlaws—51

When Rupert has had a good meal the boy sends him outside and after a few minutes he follows with his arms full of a weird assortment of things. Dropping them on the ground he begins to dress the little bear in one after another. "Why, these are the very clothes your Daddy put me into when he brought me here!" cries Rupert. "Can you spare them for me?" "Of course I can," says the boy. "I'm growing out of them, anyway." And soon one of the outlaws appears again, bringing the tracker pup.

World Title Fight Inquiry Decisions

MISCONDUCT CHARGES TO BE MADE AGAINST D'AMATO AND BILL ROSENDOHN

New York, Oct. 13.

The New York Boxing Commission announced here today the decisions on its public investigation into the organization of the June 26 world heavyweight championship fight between Sweden's Ingemar Johansson and America's Floyd Patterson.

The Boxing Commission announced: "The New York State Athletic Commission instructed its attorneys today to prepare charges of misconduct against Cus D'Amato, manager of former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, Rosendohn Enterprises Incorporated and William Rosendohn who promoted the June 26 Patterson-Johansson bout."

The three were also asked to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked.

The Commission tabulated its decisions as:

★ Counsel for the Commission is directed to prepare and serve upon Constantine

"Cus" D'Amato charges based upon his alleged misconduct, and the commission directs that the said "Cus" D'Amato show cause why his license should not be revoked.

★ Counsel for the Commission is directed to prepare and serve upon William P. Rosendohn charges based upon his alleged misconduct, and the commission directs that the said William Rosendohn show cause why his license should not be revoked.

★ Counsel for the Commission is directed to prepare and serve upon William P. Rosendohn charges based upon his alleged misconduct, and the commission directs that the said William Rosendohn show cause why his license should not be revoked.

Barred

★ The commission bars Charles Antonucci, known as Charlie Black, from participating in any professional boxing promotion or attendance at any boxing contest or exhibition under the jurisdiction of the New York State Athletic Commission and hereby serves notice upon all of its licensees to that effect.

★ The commission recommends to the Legislature of the state of New York the enactment of a statute which would require the licensing of individuals, or corporations, broadcasting, telecasting, or making motion pictures of any professional boxing promoted under the jurisdiction of the New York State Athletic Commission.

The commission then ruled:

● This commission cannot accept the fact that Salerno was an innocent bystander at these meetings, and it believes that the $10,000 loan was made by Salerno to Rosendohn in Vellela's office and that Salerno was a part of the promotion.

Candour

● While credit goes to Rosendohn for his candour, subsequent to the promotion, the commission and the fact that through his insincerity there was brought into this picture a shady character, Salerno.

Rosendohn has sworn to his own hurt and has completely repudiated and offered his assistance on his own initiative, in the several investigations in this community. Credit must be given him for this assistance. These facts constitute a vital factor in our thinking, consonant with the primary interest of the public and the welfare of the boxing industry.

● Over the period of this promotion and even before, either D'Amato or his corporation, Floyd Patterson Enterprises, was active in the negotiation for promotional or ancillary rights, as well as in the recommendation or appointment of individuals to be interested as promoter or manager, in a number of the fights in which Patterson took part.

Unhealthy Practice

● The record amply sustains the fact that D'Amato's failure to appear, was deliberate in view of the fact that he was in the jurisdiction until at least up to September 11.

● The practice of separating the ancillary rights from the gate, in a promotion, is not a healthy one. In addition to the fact that the control of a promotion is divided, it brings into the promotional picture, individuals and corporations not licensed by the state of New York and not subject to the license requirement or the jurisdiction of the New York State Athletic Commission. This practice should be controlled or discontinued.

In the proposed re-match of the Patterson-Johansson fight, although no contract for such an engagement is before the commission, it appears that again the ancillary rights have been taken from the promoter and may be exploited by individuals or corporations not licensed by the New York State Athletic Commission.—APF.

Too Good

It was Lim who made all the openings in this encounter and Nadekar was seen to be brilliant in patches.

In the other men's singles final, all-Malayan champion Charoen Wattanasin of Thailand was too good for Seth, whom he outlasted 15-5 and 15-3.

Seth played a relatively game which suited the feet-footed Wattanasin, and after the first few rallies in the first game it was obvious Seth was not in the same class.—APF.

YESTERDAY'S FIRST DIVISION HOCKEY RECREIO 'A' BEAT MACAENSIS 'A' 1-0 IN GAME MARRED BY FRAYED TEMPER

By A CHINA MAIL REPORTER

Recreio "A" maintained their unbeaten record in the Men's First Division, when they narrowly edged out their arch-rivals Macaensis "A", by a lone goal last night at Club Recreio.

Recreio now have maximum points from five games.

A good crowd turned up at Recreio expecting fireworks from these two Portuguese teams who always fight hard for victory.

The score could just as easily have been a draw, for during the second half temper became frayed and sticks began to fly. But I don't think it was so much the fault of the players as the spectators.

The teams went in at half-time to a well-deserved round of applause, and no change in the score.

Of the second half there is little to say.

After ten minutes play, the rot set in, and no more hockey, as such, was seen. Another ten minutes and the game turned into a fiasco.

Little cohesion existed between either sets of forwards, and when they did get near the goal nothing resulted. It was hit-and-run hockey not worth mentioning.

Outstanding for Recreio were the left-wing pair of Collico and Lionel Gutierrez. Their rapid later-changing was a constant menace and the latter's scintillating stick-work in the "Dee" almost ended with a goal.

For Macaensis, wing-halves Costa and Valona played well.

The teams were: Recreio: Zee Sequeira, A. Ribeiro, L. Silva, M. Valona, A. Costa, L. Costa, Y. Cankale, J. Cunha, Sa Silva, L. Sequeira, A. Couto.

Macaensis: Santos, Monteiro, Nolasco, E. Gutierrez, B. Silva, A. Silva, Alonco, Castro, A. Sousa, Collico, L. Gutierrez.

Umpires Pedro Xavier and Francisco Soares had the game well in hand during the first half and the hockey was fast, hard and clean.

Occasional flashes of neat team-work on both sides were quickly broken up by fast hard tackling from the opposing defenses. But it was the Recreio forwards who kept the ball swinging from wing to wing.

Their approach work was good but more often than not it was the final pass that went astray.

In the first 16 minutes both Macaensis and Recreio had their chances, but Capitale for Macaensis, and Castro for Recreio, saw their shots miss the goal by inches.

Fortunate Miss

Then in the 23rd minute, a harmless-looking pass went to Alonco on the right wing. He was challenged but beat the Macaensis full-back, and sent the ball to the top of the "Dee".

Fortunately, reserve Avro Sousa missed completely, and the ball went straight to inside-left Joaquim Collico. He calmly looked around, saw there was nobody near him, and cracked the ball past Zee Sequeira.

One goal up, Recreio pressed hard hoping to make it two, but a short corner hit, six minutes later, just scraped the paint of the goal-post.

The latest news of the Thai Police XV tour is that it is now almost certain to come off, but details of dates, opponents, and grounds are still awaiting confirmation. This tour together with that of the Combined Services XV from Singapore will produce two touring sides this season, and the Chinese from Taiwan are yet another possibility.

The RAF backs are fast, and dangerous, but need control of the ball before they will win, and this they will not get. A clear cut win for the Police after a hard fought battle looks the obvious verdict here.

The first game on the Army ground brings together two teams of almost equal strength. The 32nd Medium Regiment have been experimenting with their players, and at the same time trying to give everyone interested a game, have to date played 25 different players in their first two games, and as a result are as yet a very untested team. Heat Conditioning Recommended For British Olympic Runners

London, Oct. 13. British competitors in endurance events — the marathon and 50 kilometres walk for instance — in next year's Olympic Games may undergo heat conditioning in hot chambers just before they leave for Rome.

Research into the desirability of this step is now being conducted in a London hospital by the Medical Research Council, who are also looking, on behalf of the British Olympic team, a preventative for mild dysentery often experienced by travellers abroad.

Sunbathing, either by natural means or by ultra-violet light, for the British team before they reach Rome, was one of the recommendations made by doctors, when they met here privately, to discuss the problems of heat and humidity likely to be met in Rome.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Other recommendations passed to the British Olympic Association from the meeting included advice on diet and methods of protection against the sun. Inoculations against polio and typhoid were considered essential.

Present at the meeting were representatives of the British Association of Sport and Medicine, the Medical Research Council, the Royal Society of Medicine, and honorary medical officers of some governing bodies of sport.

Sir Arthur Porritt, one of the Royal surgeons, and a former New Zealand Olympic sprinter, presided.—China Mail Special.

TWENTY-ONE-YEAR-OLD DAVID L. RUMENIS, of Hartford, made a great effort in the world junior championship, in Switzerland last week, and at the beginning of the final round was only a point behind the leader.

But in the decisive game against Bielicki, of the Argentine, Rumenis was gradually out-played and his opponent became the new champion.

And Rumenis put up the best result by a British player in a world championship since 1951, and his vigorous attacking play accounted for the Russian junior, Alexander Tomson in a mere 22 moves.

With 64 points, Rumenis was 11 points ahead of Tomson and 24 in front of Rodney Phillips, the adult champion of New Zealand.

Police Take On RAF Kai Tak In Best Of Today's Three Rugby Games

By PAK LO

This afternoon we once again have three rugby games scheduled for the Boundary Street grounds, and without question the big match of the afternoon will be that between the Police and RAF Kai Tak at 4.30 p.m. on the Police ground.

The other two games are both on the Army ground. The RASC take on the 32nd Medium Regiment at 3.15 p.m., and following this at 4.30 p.m. the Sappers will once again be in action, this time against HMS Selby.

The latest news of the Thai Police XV tour is that it is now almost certain to come off, but details of dates, opponents, and grounds are still awaiting confirmation. This tour together with that of the Combined Services XV from Singapore will produce two touring sides this season, and the Chinese from Taiwan are yet another possibility.

The RAF pack, while strong, do not yet work as a concerted team, and while they may well take a fair share of the ball from the lineouts, they are likely to be overcome in the scrum and the loose.

Fast Backs

The RAF backs are fast, and dangerous, but need control of the ball before they will win, and this they will not get. A clear cut win for the Police after a hard fought battle looks the obvious verdict here.

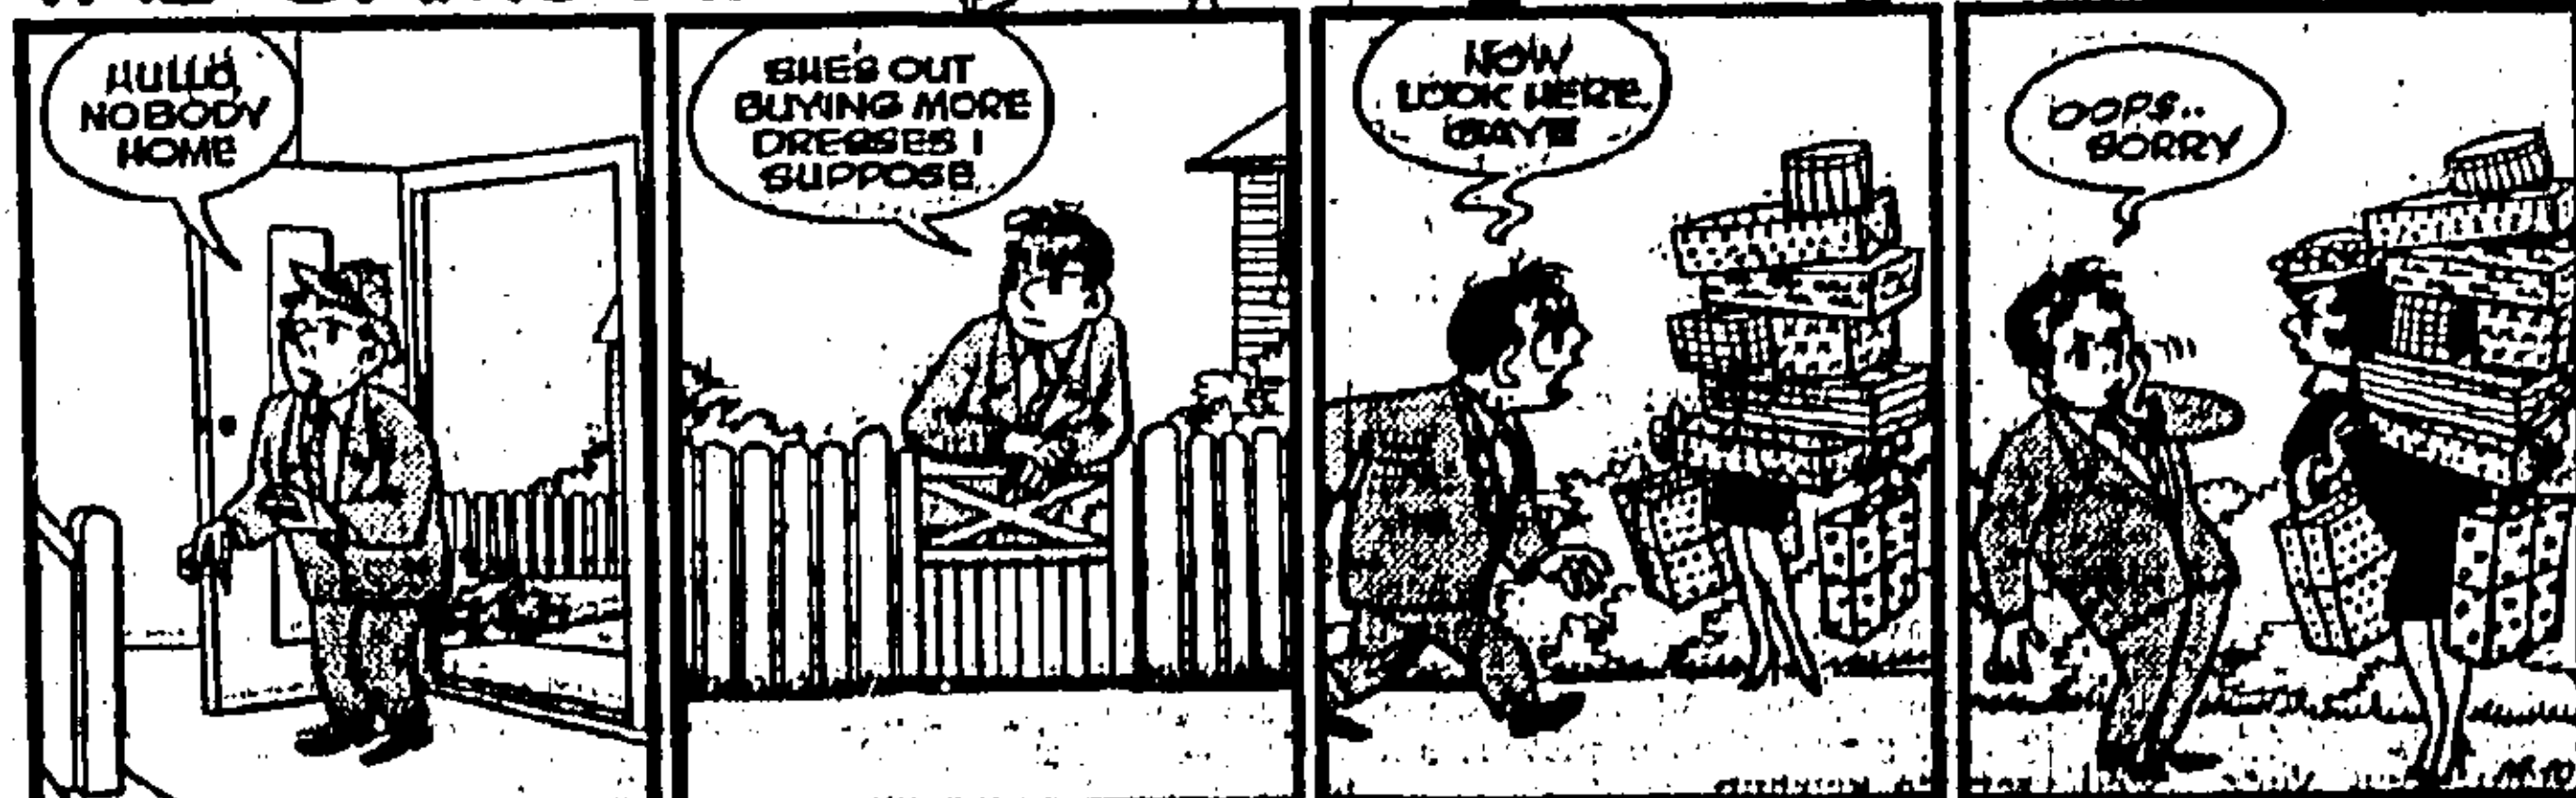

The first game on the Army ground brings together two teams of almost equal strength. The 32nd Medium Regiment have been experimenting with their players, and at the same time trying to give everyone interested a game, have to date played 25 different players in their first two games, and as a result are as yet a very untested team. The RASC on the other hand do not have this strength, but have a strong, potentially

Neill is the fighter who has twice been told "you'll never fight again" after road accidents, but has twice come back. In his second comeback he won the national championship in spite of having one leg inches shorter than the other.

People always seem to be crossing the Atlantic in small boats, but Yugoslav-born naturalised Argentinian Count Mirko de Tapavica is unusual in that he is rowing up the Atlantic from Argentina to New York. His 19 ft. long, 2 ft. wide folding boat is equipped with a sail, but this he only uses in harbour. At sea he prefers the oars.

Now spending a week in Trinidad, he left Buenos Aires on March 7 and has stopped several times en route. He expects to reach New York, via Venezuela, Curacao, Jamaica, Haiti, Cuba and Florida, in another three to four months. In his fifties, he is still a bachelor, represented Yugoslavia in the 1936 Olympics at swimming, water polo and skiing, and can speak 11 languages.

British Matador Earns Cheers In Spain

Madrid, Oct. 13.
 Sturdy peasant admirers carried British matador Vincent Hitchcock, 31, shoulder high out of the bullring in the small Castilian town of Roa today when he staged a successful comeback to bullfighting after six years.

Hitchcock killed two bulls in a Novillada — a fight in which the bulls are young and the fighters are not fully fledged.
 Hitchcock, known to Spanish crowds as "El Inglez," has been chieftain farming in Kent for some years. He took part in some 60 bullfights in Spain between 1949 and 1953.

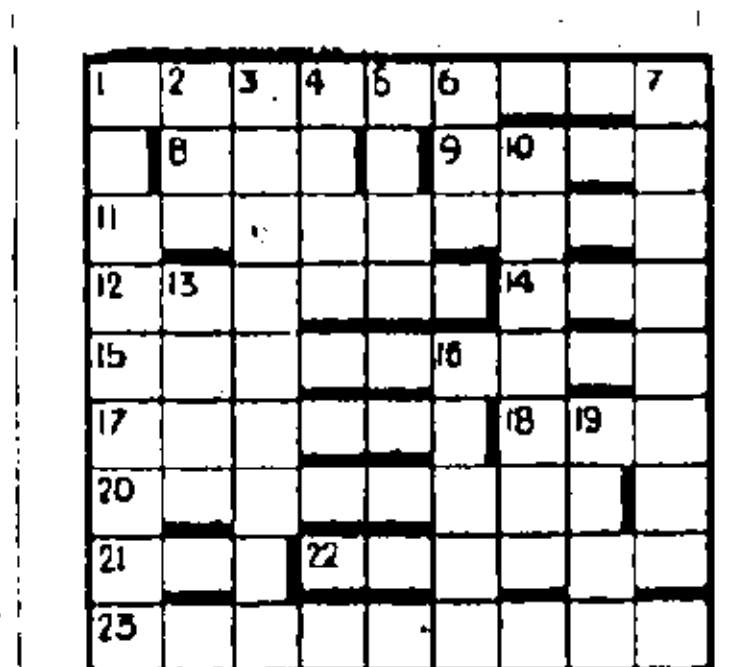

Hitchcock regards today's contest at the end of the 1959 bullfighting season, as the curtain-raiser to a busy season next year when he hopes to fight from 25 to 30 bulls and take his alternative — becoming a fully-fledged matador.
 He is at present known in the profession as a novillero, fighting younger bulls than a full matador. He has been in the training in Madrid for several weeks.

JOSTLED
 In brilliant sunshine, a capacity crowd of 3,000 today saw Hitchcock kill his first bull badly, after five attempts, and there was only scattered applause.

The second bull jostled Hitchcock before falling dead but the Briton was not injured.
 Hitchcock was loudly applauded for killing the bull with one thrust of the sword and was given the ear of the bull for his performance.

Fans had come from as far as 100 miles to watch the fights, staged in conjunction with a wine festival — China Mail Special.

Mr Squier, 29, chief production pilot for English Electric (seen here boarding an English Electric P.1 Lightning) who went missing during a routine test flight in a P.1, came ashore in a dinghy at Garlieston recently and was later taken to Garlick Hospital, Stranraer, Scotland, suffering from exposure but "in fairly good shape".

Mr Squier, who lives with his wife Margaret and two daughters at Broad Oak Lane, Penwith, Devon, was flying the Lightning from Warton aerodrome, Lancashire, under radar surveillance, but the radar screen lost trace of him west of St Bee's Head, Cumberland.

The search began after a yachtsman reported seeing an aircraft come down in the sea north of the Isle of Man. English Electric stated that Mr Squier used his ejection seat when the aircraft got into difficulties, and floated ashore in a dinghy fitted with a survival kit.

SURPRISE has been expressed at the poor attendance at the annual Old Narkoverian dinner held last month.

In a statement issued Dr Smart-Alek said: "The training for Big Business which is part of the Narkover tradition involves risks for our Old Boys. Many of them are in prison, others about to go to prison. Yet others hesitate to show themselves in public while the present criticisms of enterprise and initiative are being directed against so many successful business men and financiers. We must therefore honour all the more those few courageous men who, in attending the dinner, had to dodge the police, outwit detectives, and even, in some cases, assume a disguise and travel incognito to the restaurant."

Bournemouth, beware! Bournemouth's campaign to keep out naked shows, and to present cultural entertainment instead, may lead to an offer from the Narkover Colony to present their naked version of "Julius Caesar", in pursuance of their Shakespeare in modern dress movement.

Picture ceremony marred FOR the second year running Minnie Slopcomer has been elected Miss Plastic Dublin by the voters of Southolt-in-the-Fable. In a short speech the mayor presented her with a small model of a dustbin, filled with near-champagne. As Minnie lifted it to drink, the mayor, in attempting a ceremonial kiss, jostled her elbow, and the bizarre beverage splashed over them both, to the delight of the onlookers. A councillor wiped them down with his handkerchief. "It is no use crying over spilt milk," commented the mayor. The cow that milk came from, said one of Minnie's saucy maids of honour, "had the art of blowing bubbles."

Buildings On A Grand Scale Are Going Up

Sydney, (By Airmail)

It isn't so long ago that we were content to erect buildings worth just a few hundred thousand pounds but today anything under a million or so isn't worth reporting. Right throughout Australia buildings well in the millions are either in the course of production or planned.

To start with there is Sydney's Opera House which will cost £2.7 million before its sail-like roof rises above the harbour.

There is an insurance block being erected at the Quay which will be the largest office block in Australia and is estimated to cost £5 million.

Up at King's Cross the steel girders of the new lush Chevron Hotel point skywards, and before we last weekend got off that job £5 million will have changed hands.

The £10 million Commonwealth block of offices for Sydney are at the moment a hole in the ground; an English owned company will build the largest office block in the Southern Hemisphere in Melbourne, costing £8 million.

A city departmental store has had plans approved for the building of a £2 million store at the suburban centre of Chislehurst. While the outer metropolitan council of Blacktown has approved a plan for a £1,500,000 shopping block.

Everywhere we go are these stories of millions. In between of course there are quite a number of buildings going up costing around the £500,000 mark, but with so many millions being spent these days we are almost in danger of losing our sense of proportion of what a million really is.

On top of this Canberra has announced that home building in all States is a near record and if the present rate continues we will overtake the lag in homes—in 20 years' time.

 This man's army of today isn't quite the same army which we knew some 15 years or so ago.

It has now begun a £100,000 project to provide a holiday centre on the Gold Coast for regular army troops serving in Queensland.

The plan provides for 32 motel-type units, set amid tropical shrubs and gardens. A specially incorporated company has been formed, Northern Command Army Holiday Research Limited, whose directors will be appointed by army top-brass.

Four acres of land have been bought alongside Coolangubla airport and earth-moving equipment is now preparing the ground for the first group of holiday units.

Each unit will be of brick, self-contained and will cover 400 square feet.

The plan also provides for a swimming pool, a wading pool, television and games room.

The project will be completed in two stages, each to cost £50,000 but it may be 10 years before the army writes final bill to the job.

Stage one consists of eight family units, a flat for the manager, amenities for children; a laundry and a dry cleaners. It should be ready for Christmas.

Nothing's been said about sergeant majors.

 A man who won £80,000 in lotteries in the last 20 years, died this week just as he sat down to play cards — something he loved as much as winning lotteries.

He was Harry ("The Wizard") Brukars, who has won more prizes in the lottery than probably any other person in the world.

His luck had landed him more than £80,000 in major prizes including six firsts, three of them in one 12-month period.

In addition to the major prizes, however, he won thousands in minor prizes which he rarely mentioned and which he usually ploughed back in the way of tickets.

As a matter of fact, Harry Brukars was born lucky. His parents had just arrived in Australia in 1882 when they got news that they won the then fabulous Hamburg lottery of £25,000.

The family went back to the plot and later went to live in Victoria. From there they returned to Australia. From when he was old enough, Harry invested in the lotteries and that kept him in luxury for the rest of his life.

Shift in his city curio shop were quite used to newspaper reporters calling to tell him of another win. Once, when it was fourth prize, the girl said "I won't disturb him. He won't be very interested in only fourth prize."

And while on the subject of lotteries, subscriptions to the N.S.W. lottery fell by £607,500 last year. The revenue fell from a record level of £14,205,000 in 1957-58 to £13,597,500.

Two Opera House lotteries yielded £1 million, 20 jackpot lotteries—£2 million and 80 special lotteries—£4 million 300 thousand. (£24,300,000).

Although it has been estimated that it takes at least £600,000 to equip, set-up and stand the initial losses of a country T.V. station, the Postmaster General, Mr Davidson, has announced that there will be between 40 and 50 applicants for country television licenses.

He forecast a protracted period of hearing the applications which indicates considerable delay in setting up the country stations.

The applications for the license cover 13 areas.

 The boys in blue — in other words the police — are taking on a different hue in Queensland.

The State Government has decided that in future Queensland cops will have drip-dry light-weight olive green uniforms.

The present blue and khaki uniforms will be scrapped. In Sydney, the State Government was decided to give a summer trial to letting police go without tunics.

This year they will be dressed in blue shirts, tie and specially made trousers which will have a concealed holster for the carrying of a pistol, handcuffs, etc.

 Adelaide pie manufacturers denied last week that kangaroo meat was being used in pies.

"We wouldn't touch it with a 40-foot pole" one pie-maker said, while another declared it was a libel on the trade and that they would not use anything but the best of beef.

The denials followed a statement by a city alderman that kangaroo meat coming into the city was probably being processed for meat pies.

When the pie merchants snarled down, however, they all agreed that kangaroo meat would probably make an extremely good filling for pies.

The famous are soon forgotten. The Prime Minister, Mr Menzies, said in the House one day last week that he did not know if a "former Australian Treasurer, Sir Arthur Fadden, was associated with a Japanese firm."

He said he knew nothing of Sir Arthur's activities.

He was replying to a question by a member who asked if Sir Arthur Fadden was now representing in Australia a Japanese firm and negotiating on its behalf for Australian iron ore.

The strange case of Sir Arthur Fadden has puzzled many people.

He and the Prime Minister spent more than 20 years together in politics and seemed to be the very best of friends.

Yet Sir Arthur, who gave the best years of his life as a Federal Treasurer, is the only well known politician to retire in the last 10 years at least, who has not received a rich plum from the Government.

Sonia Stopped Twice Between HK & Bangkok

SOPHIE'S OFF TO AMERICA

Two-year-old Sophie Huguenot left yesterday with her mother on the ss President Hoover for a holiday cruise to San Francisco, California.

With her mother, Sophie will then fly to New York where she will meet her father, Mr. G. Huguenot, Manager, L. Rondon & Co. (HK) Ltd.

Mr. Huguenot is flying across the Pacific on Thursday to take up managerial duties for the company in New York. The photo shows Sophie saying goodbye on board the ss President Hoover.

Quartermaster's Disclosure To Supreme Court

A former plaintiffs who had withdrawn his claim against the mv Sonia for arrears of wages testified this morning that the Sonia had carried a number of Chiu Chau people on its two trips from Hongkong to Bangkok in 1956.

The man, Yeung Tak, a quartermaster of the ship, said he received $100 as bonus from the charterer, the Yick Yuen Shipping Co., on completion of the first trip, and he expected to receive another bonus on the second trip.

Yeung, a subpoena witness called by the Defence, is testifying in a claim by eight former crew members for $32,000 in unpaid wages plus fares from Bangkok to Hongkong against the Sonia and its owner, Mr. Henrique Leitao.

Mr. Leitao counterclaimed $92,000, which he alleged he had lost through not being able to charter the ship while it was detained for two years at Bangkok.

The case is being heard in the Supreme Court before Mr. Justice A. D. Scholes.

Disembarked

Yeung testified that the ship left Hongkong in July, 1956, and anchored off the Man Shan Islands about four or five miles south of Macao. On the following morning about 30 or 40 people, mostly natives of Chiu Chau, boarded the ship.

The ship then sailed for Bangkok and stopped about 100 miles from the Thai capital. There, the people disembarked and were transferred into two fishing junks, Yeung said.

When the Sonia returned to Hongkong, Yeung said, he was called to the dining room and was given $100 bonus from Yick Yuen Co. Other crew members had also received bonus, he added.

The ship left Hongkong again on August 19, 1956 and stopped at Man Shan Islands. On this occasion, 30 people boarded the ship and were transferred to two fishing junks when the Sonia was about 200 miles off Bangkok.

Only A Junior

Asked if he knew where these people were, Yeung replied in the negative, adding that he was only a junior crew member. He said he would expect to receive a bonus for the second trip as he had received one on the first trip.

"When the Sonia arrived in Bangkok, the Thai authorities suspected smuggling of persons into the country and they arrested the captain, the chief officer and the chief engineer," Yeung went on.

The crew was detained on board and was questioned. He said the crew had also said nothing and on board the ship for their food allowance. He said there was about 100 Bahts, but as there was insufficient for him, he had also pawned or sold his belongings.

Client Refused To Pay For Inferior Goods

THE public examination of two brothers, Mr. Z. Y. Wu, and Mr. George Wu, partners in the Gin Nih Weaving Factory, concluded this morning before Mr. Justice J. R. Gregg in the Bankruptcy Court.

The case was adjourned to November 5, for reading and signing of the depositions.

Earlier, Mr. George Wu was questioned by Mr. T. C. Chan for the Official Receiver. He said that his factory rented two sizing (stretching) machines from private individuals who had bought them. The sizing department was separate from the weaving factory, but he did not know why their accounts were incorporated in the books of the factory.

Mr. Wu said that all his factory paid was a monthly rent for the machines. He denied that the machine owners were paid dividends from the factory.

Mr. Chan then disclosed that Wu's wife was one of the owners of the machines and that she had received $3,750 dividends from the factory. Mr. Wu explained that he did not know much about the accounts, but there was nothing to prevent the machine owners taking a dividend out of their own account if they made money from the hiring.

Denial

He also agreed that another of the owners of the machines was his sister-in-law, Mrs. Z. Y. Wu, but he denied knowing the name Yu Kee.

Mr. Chan: "Why are there so many of these fictitious names, Ming Kee, Yu Kee and Yau Kee, in the account books of cotton cloth factory? What is the purpose behind it?"

Mr. Wu: "I cannot tell you because it is not my department."

Mr. Chan: "I put it to you that these names were used to conceal excessive drawings of the partners and their wives."

Mr. Wu: "I do not know because I do not know these names."

Mr. Chan: "If I told you your wife's account in the weaving factory was under Yau Kee, would you agree?"

Mr. Wu: "Yes, I know that. She deposited money in the weaving factory and she has a share in the sizing machines."

Mr. Chan: "You said the factory paid out any money for the sizing machines. He said the sizing was a separate business but he did not know why they did not have separate accounts."

Small Scale

Explaining the failure of the factory, he said they began on a very small scale but they put in more machines to decrease the overhead. When they had a big order from South Africa they had to increase their loans to $40 and business was very prosperous then.

Mr. Chan: "The factory was delayed because the October 10 riots in 1956 prevented them from installing all the looms."

Later they had another big order from South Africa for 5,000 yards of cotton cloth. Unfortunately these clients did not pay us and we were left with the goods and had to sell them at a cheaper price."

Mr. Wu said they had only made 500,000 yards but he estimated a loss of $500,000. He continued,

Bargains At Hospital Sale

Dolls, cradles, soft toys and small rattan baskets all at eighty cents each, were among the outstanding bargains at the exhibition and sale of handicrafts made by mental patients at the Mental Hospital, which opened this morning.

Dr. D. J. M. Mackenzie, Director of Medical and Health Services, and Mrs. Mackenzie opened the exhibition at 10 a.m. and were shown around by Dr. P. M. Yap, Medical Superintendent; Matron I. Szekey; Miss Pauline Ross and Miss Kathleen Wright, occupational therapists. Mr. R. Porter, chief male nurse, Mr. You Chuen-kan and Mr. Ho Chak-lam, handicraft instructors, were presented by the Matron.

A number of guests including Miss B. Schofield, Principal Ma'yon, Mr. B. I. Bickford, Medical Department Secretary, and Mrs. Bickford were among the early shoppers.

ADMIRED

Beautiful tapestry screens, well rugs, patchwork quilts, handmade toys, embroideries, paintings and plastic garden furniture were among the items greatly admired.

On exhibit were a series of five paintings by a brilliant architectural student suffering from schizophrenia completed during various stages of his treatment.

The early paintings done while he was on a course of insulin, were bizarre in design and unco-ordinated, but as the medical condition of the artist improved, the work progressed in concentrated detail and with splendid results.

The sale continues throughout the day until 5 p.m.

Sold Goods

Cross-examined by Mr. Y. H. Chan, representing Miss Lin Tin-wu, Wu denied that he had any interest in a family business, Tung Yick Cotton Mills of Shanghai. He said at one time "no one would trust us," so he had to sell ready-made goods to the United Company who paid the money directly to the yarn suppliers before he could get any yarn for his looms.

Questioned about Tsui Choy Sing, who had committed suicide, Wu said that he was a family friend and he heard that Tsui had financial dealings with his brother.
